

Provo City School District
Policy Series 4000: Curriculum, Instruction, Assessment

4020 P1

Curriculum Development and Adoption of Instructional Materials

The curriculum of a district will be examined on a regular basis according to the cyclical review established by the office of Teaching and Learning. This review of district-wide curriculum materials will run per the established review cycle.

The adoption of curriculum for other content areas will be determined at the school level under the direction of the building principal.

District Curriculum Committees: Process for District-Wide Materials Adoption

The district curriculum committees guide curriculum and instruction related to their content. These teacher-directed committees establish and monitor such procedures as may be necessary for the selecting, adopting and discarding of instructional materials purchased and implemented by the district. The committees will act upon requests for text approval and removal and will evaluate and act upon citizens' requests for reconsideration of instructional materials. The function of the committees is to ensure that materials are selected in conformance to stated criteria and related state laws.

Regular committee meetings will be held monthly. In addition to the foundation of teachers representing different grade levels and schools in the district, a few building and district administrators will also serve on a district curriculum committee. Meetings are open to the public but only committee members can participate in the discussion and related decision-making.

During those years when materials adoption is under consideration, monthly meeting agendas will be directed to the process of materials' evaluation and selection. A district curriculum committee becomes an Instructional Materials Committee at this time. In addition to the established teacher and administrative committee members, the superintendent or designee will invite a minimum of five parents/community members to serve as voting members to the committee during the materials adoption process. Content representatives from local universities can also be invited to participate on this committee.

This Instructional Materials Committee for a particular content area will develop procedures according to established district and state guidelines for the evaluation and purchase of materials subject to the approval of the superintendent. These procedures must include the Criteria for Selection of Instructional Material identified in district policy 4020 and the use of curriculum analysis tools available through the state. School districts and schools can only purchase primary instructional materials that have been evaluated and mapped by an independent third party for alignment with the established state and district standards. The district office will provide technical assistance as may be necessary during this process.

Scheduled committee meetings of an Instructional Materials Committee must be published on the district website to inform community members of their opportunity to observe the process of materials' adoption. The committee must allow at least two weeks for the review of proposed materials.

After a review of available instructional materials, the committee will reach consensus on a recommendation to take to the board. Intervention and supplementary materials also require committee approval and a recommendation to the board. Materials must be approved by the board prior to their purchase and use in classrooms.

Recommendations for district-wide materials adoption will be presented to the board in the spring by the superintendent's designee for a particular district curriculum committee. Requests to deviate from this timeline must be approved by the superintendent in consultation with the board president. Recommendations to the board must include projected costs of the proposed implementation by grade and/or level as well as the funding stream for the purchase.

Citizens Participation in the Review of Instructional Materials

Should a community member wish to make a formal protest regarding specific material used in the school system, he/she must use the form for requesting reconsideration of instructional materials. These forms are available in the Office of Teaching and Learning. A request to remove an item from the schools or limit its use will be acted upon by a subset of a district curriculum committee with parent representation will follow these procedures in considering an appeal:

1. Set a time and place for an open hearing of the complaint by a curriculum sub-committee. Such hearing will be within 30 days of the assistant superintendent's receipt of the completed request form.
2. Notify the complainant and appropriate staff and parents on the curriculum sub-committee of the time and place of the meeting. Such notification will include an invitation to present relevant information, oral or written.
3. Assemble such data, including reviews and professional opinions of the materials, the staff member's objectives in using the materials, and the specific objections of the complainant, as may be necessary for the sub-committee to properly judge the request for reconsideration.

Hearings of a community member's request for reconsideration will be open to the public. Decisions will be by majority vote of the committee. Decisions of the committee will be delivered in writing to the superintendent, complainant and affected staff within 20 workdays. Any appeal of this decision must be delivered in writing to the superintendent within two weeks. The local school board will make final decisions on appeals.

Removal of Instructional Materials

Instructional materials may be removed from collections at any time that they no longer meet the criteria for initial selection outlined in “Criteria for Selection of Instructional Material” in board policy 4020. Any instructional materials may be removed when the administration judges such removal to be in the best interests of the district. Ordinary procedures for withdrawal of materials are outlined below:

Texts will be removed from collections by the district curriculum committee based on the criteria for selection in this procedure and on the availability of suitable replacement materials.

Members of the community are invited to review any instructional materials in current use or proposed for district purchase. Such review may be accomplished through the Office of Teaching and Learning. The review and examination process should be arranged in a way to avoid disrupting the educational program. The review of materials should be undertaken with the knowledge of district objectives in mind. The following activities will be employed to help citizens become familiar with instructional materials:

A. A variety of learning materials will be available for perusal as requested in the district library/media center. The district media coordinator will facilitate this process. Patrons may be given the opportunity to review materials online when they are available.

B. Displays of learning materials may be provided in schools during P.T.A. meetings, parent-teacher conferences and public meetings during the school year.

Removal of Materials from the Approved For Use List

At the time of adoption by the board of education, basic instructional materials will be added to the "Approved for Use" list.

After the newly adopted basic materials have been purchased for the schools in the district, and thus superseding those materials which had been previously adopted, the former district adoptions will be removed from the "Approved for Use" list.

Those materials that have been removed from the "Approved for Use" list should be regarded as surplus property and disposed of by the appropriate administrator using the approved vendor in accordance with district and state procedures.

Planning for Instruction

To ensure planning and continuity of instruction, teachers will develop written lesson plans for daily instruction. Lesson plans must include but are not limited to a reference to district curriculum for clear instructional targets, provide for appropriate assessment of student learning and make provisions for differentiated instructional strategies. Lesson plans must be readily available.

Instructional Materials: Guidelines for Use of Ephemeral, Expendable, or Topical Materials or Non-Provo City School District Materials

Effective instruction requires that teachers make use of current events and contexts in order to engage students in the learning process.

At times, materials may become available to teachers that would enhance learning but would be unavailable or impractical to review. For example:

- Proceedings of governmental bodies as broadcast on television;
- Editorials from a recent paper; or
- Websites that are enhanced on a regular basis

At other times, materials may become available through community groups, business partners, or service organizations.

Principals are responsible for developing guidelines for the approval and use of these materials. These guidelines should be shared with all staff on a regular basis. Guidelines should:

1. Be appropriate for age and maturity levels of the students
2. Give appropriate consideration to the values of a pluralistic society
3. Support specific instructional objectives that the material is addressing;
4. Define the extent of use
5. Define the date(s) of use
6. Identify the approval of the principal for potentially controversial topics.

The use of these resources shall be referenced in the teacher's written lesson plans. Potentially controversial materials should be identified in a teacher's disclosure document that parents sign.

Curriculum Alignment

Provo City School District's curriculum will be aligned with the state's required learning standards. Each teacher in the Provo City School District will employ the aligned curriculum and clearly identified district learning essentials/competencies in providing students with the opportunity to acquire the knowledge, skills and assessment strategies necessary to meet or exceed the state proficiency cut scores, district graduation requirements and entrance requirements for post-secondary education and/or occupational opportunities.

Course Disclosure Document

All students in grades 7 through 12 in the Provo City School District will be provided with a disclosure document for each course that outlines the curriculum for the course pursuant to state and district policy. The disclosure document will describe, through clearly identified district learning essentials/competencies, the extent to which the curriculum will provide students with the knowledge, skills and assessment strategies that will enable them to meet or exceed the state's proficiency cut scores, district graduation requirements and entrance requirements for post-secondary education and/or occupational opportunities. Additionally, each disclosure document will include the manner in which students will be assessed and graded, along with the classroom management requirements for the class.

Teachers will develop reading lists and classroom libraries so that students have a wide variety of reading materials suggested or available to them that support student mastery of learning essentials and critical content. Teachers will include these reading lists in their disclosure document to enable parents and the principal to review them. If a parent believes that a book on the reading list is objectionable, the teacher will provide an alternate book for the student to read as a replacement.

Parents will sign a statement acknowledging receipt of a class disclosure document.

Surplus Textbooks and Instructional Materials

When it has been determined that textbooks and instructional materials have become obsolete and are in need of disposal from a district site, the obsolete reading material must first be made available to the district approved vendor for processing through that system in accordance with district and state requirements.

Instructional materials may be declared surplus if:

- The material has been superseded by a new edition
- The copyright date is old enough to indicate that the material is dated in content, use and accuracy,
- The physical condition precludes further use or,
- The use of the material is limited because of a program change.

Responsibility

It is the responsibility of the Assistant Superintendent to provide, on an annual basis and in the spring of each school year, instructions to sites for the annual disposal of all surplus textbooks and library books and instructional materials. The instructions will include directions for packing and reporting materials to be declared surplus through the district vendor.

It is the responsibility of the Financial Administrator to process the finances associated with the disposal of all surplus textbooks, library books and instructional materials in accordance with district and state guidelines.

If the surplus textbooks and library books and instructional materials are determined to have no value or if no purchaser is found, the reading materials may be recycled through the approved district vendor.
